Hazardous Weather

Isolated thunderstorms are possible this afternoon and evening generally across higher terrain and the immediately adjacent plains. Storms will be capable of gusty wind, small hail, and brief heavy rainfall.

We will begin to dry out on Wednesday as dry air begins to move in from the west. There will still be enough moisture to kick off a few thunderstorms in area mountains and east of the Rio Grande. Winds will be from the southeast at 5 to 15 mph. High temperatures will run near seasonal averages.
